Dear Mr Glover

You are not going to like what I have written, however, it must be said.

Within the last couple of years a mindless moron in Parliament (not a minister) stated that the UK did not need farmers as all our food could be imported!

As I hear it, 1000 acres of vital farm land will be obliterated in the Beane Valley Industrial Development Proposals. There are alternative ways of using solar panels effectively, without demolishing farm land.

Related to my concern over the development is the fact that over a hundred workers at an oil field have been made redundant, while at the same time the UK is importing oil. Why? This also begs the question as to why these solar panels are being imported from China.

I do understand that we need to make changes to our supply of energy, but this cannot be done in a short space of time. It requires careful consideration and research into effective methods of energy supply - not a knee jerk reaction. When wind farms were heralded as the new, clean energy supplier they were only 25% efficient. Are they any better now?

It all boils down to greed rather than the benefit of the people of this Country, as well as politicians' virtue signalling.

I need to explain why my letter has been delayed till 4th October. My tech skills are limited so I could not use the QR code, and there wasn't an email address. The letter was written on 4th October, but I wasn't able to post it in good time. I am therefore delivering it by hand to the Council Offices in Gannon Road.

The purpose of this lengthy message is to state my strong objection to the Beane Valley Industrial Development Proposal. This will extinguish a beautiful part of our country. More importantly, it will take away the livelihood of our farmers, combined with Rachel Reeves punitive taxes.

Yours sincerely
