

An architectural elevation drawing of a house. The house features a gabled roof with a chimney on the left side. The walls are textured with horizontal wavy lines. A window with a grid pattern is located on the upper right, and a door with a grid pattern is located on the lower right. The house is flanked by a fence on the left and a grey base at the bottom.

This architectural elevation drawing depicts a two-story residential building. The main structure features a gabled roof and a central chimney. The walls are rendered with horizontal hatching, while the chimney is shown with a stippled texture. The house has several windows: a large multi-paned window on the left, a smaller window next to it, and another window on the right. A lower, single-story extension is attached to the right side of the main house. The drawing includes shadows cast by the building onto the ground, which is represented by a solid grey area at the bottom. The background shows faint outlines of other buildings and a horizon line.

An architectural elevation drawing of a two-story house. The house features a gabled roof with a chimney on the right side. The exterior walls are textured with a stippled pattern. There are several windows: a large multi-paned window on the left, a smaller multi-paned window on the right, and a small square window above the entrance. The entrance is a small porch with a decorative door. To the right of the entrance is a large garage door. The drawing is a black and white line art with stippling for texture.
