Since the installation of the access the central waiting area which was always exclusively used for access to Newnham Road is now being erroneously used by people heading into this site. I have nearly had 2 head-on collisions with van drivers (on their phone) crossing into the central area to turn right. An accident will happen eventually, and given the speed limit it has the potential to be severe.

Image below to highlight the current danger.

The entrance either needs to be moved further down so the central divide is no longer usable for people accessing the site, or it needs to be removed completely (perhaps a central island) so that the opportunity for a head on collision is no longer there.

I look forward to your reply.

Thanks

Jack
